Climate and Recycling

Climate describes long-term patterns of temperature, rainfall, wind, and other conditions in a region. Burning fossil fuels releases greenhouse gases that trap heat in the atmosphere and contribute to global warming.

Recycling turns used materials into inputs for new products. Sorting paper, metal, glass, and suitable plastics can reduce waste, but local rules differ. Reducing unnecessary purchases and reusing items can also conserve resources.